Look. You know and I know that the break-up of AT&T means we're getting screwed, but we also know there's not a darn tootin' thing we can do about it! So do like I'm doin'—RELAX!

"Andy," Aunt Bea said to me the other day, "why don't you quit your moanin' about AT&T havin' profits of $10 billion last year and realize that you can't fight city hall—or the world's biggest corporation."

And y'know, she made a lot of sense. There's no use gettin' yourself worked up in a fuss over somethin' ya can't do anything about! So I decided to relax and count my blessings for "Ol' Reliable" here.

Without AT&T how could we call-up and see how Gomer's doin' over in Beirut? Without AT&T how could Goober list his lube and oil special in the Mount Pilot Yellow Pages? Without AT&T, how could I call up Helen and get into stupid arguments that we would never have with each other in person? I need "Ol' Reliable" and, heck, so what if my phone bill's gonna triple in the next year? I'm just thankful we live in a country that's so free, businesses can do whatever they feel like.
